

DRAWING SKILLS

Here are five ways to develop your drawing skills.

1.

DRAW A LITTLE EVERY DAY.

Draw a character you like, sketch a scene, or even doodle. Get enough practice every day. At the end of each week, attempt a slightly complex drawing to see how you're improving.

2.

PLAY WITH COLOURS.

Mix and match colours, either on software or a colour palette. Try identifying different shades of a certain colour and their names. Take online quizzes to help you improve your understanding of colours. Check out Pinterest boards and observe the kind of colours they use.

LEARN NEW STYLES.

Practice new styles of drawing regularly. This will help you figure out which one best suits you. At least take up two new styles a month. Follow online communities like DeviantArt to interact with other artists and learn about new styles.

JOIN A LOCAL WORKSHOP.

Participate in drawing workshops happening in your school, college or in your neighbourhood. They will help you get an expert's perspective on your drawing, and advice on honing your skills in the right manner.

LOOK UP OTHER ARTISTS.

Set time aside to look up different artists and their work every day. It's one of the best ways to improve your craft and style. Don't just look up styles you're interested in; discover as much art as you can.
